

Suits could force L.A. to spend huge sums on sid...

Subject: Suits could force L.A. to spend huge sums on sidewalk repair

From: duckworth.donald@gmail.com

Date: 01/30/2012 09:55 PM

To: jruhlen916@aol.com, duckworth.donald@gmail.com, nate.kaplan@lacity.org

This story was sent to you by: Don Duckworth

I guess this is what it has come to for many.

-----
Suits could force L.A. to spend huge sums on sidewalk repair
-----

The civil rights actions claim that broken sidewalks and missing curb ramps violate the Americans With Disabilities Act. The city could be on the hook for hundreds of millions of dollars.

By Ari Bloomekatz, Los Angeles Times

January 30 2012, 8:22 PM PST

Los Angeles may be the land of the freeway, but it is notorious for its bad sidewalks; buckled, cracked and sometimes impassable. By the city's own estimate, 42% of its 10,750 miles of pedestrian paths are in disrepair.

The complete article can be viewed at:

<http://www.latimes.com/news/local/la-me-sidewalks-20120131,0,2914523.story>

Visit latimes.com at <http://www.latimes.com>